

fraction of that. Their figures are based on some distant projections from 1977 out of Kansas and some other things. I tried to check them in detail and they just were projections. We see a real deep analysis was done one time...

SENATOR LAMB: One minute, Senator.

SENATOR DECAMP: ...by the very people that were going to get this bill passed in a different administration. And they wrote a memo and that memo explained how much this was costing the State and the memo was done by the very people that tried to pass the bill and explain the reasons for it. John Decker the Tax Commissioner to Larry Bare, the one that's still currently pushing this and if you'll turn to the last page. This isn't based on Kansas or speculation or anything, it's based on reality, what they actually were getting in Nebraska, what it cost them. Based on the sales tax refund claims we have received on computer software programs, we are estimating that the fiscal impact of this legislation would be an increase of $200,000 in fiscal year '82-'83 net general fund receipts. This estimate assumes that the legislation would be effective for the whole fiscal year. Like I say Dita Beard learned it, destroy those memos. This won't raise the money; it'll drive what little industry we have that's developing out of the State.

SENATOR LAMB: Your time is up, Senator.

SENATOR DECAMP: And I ask you to reject the proposal.

SENATOR LAMB: Senator Newell. Before we continue, we'll introduce 24 more students from Senator Beyer's district. They're the second half of the fourth grade group from Springfield, Jan Albers teacher, in the North Balcony. Would you help me welcome these students? Also, just coming in now in the South Balcony, we have 45 students from Senator Wesely's district, UNL Department of Economics Number 211 and Kim Kuhle, instructor. Stand and be recognized please. Senator Newell.

SENATOR NEWELL: Yes, Senator DeCamp, he didn't get away, did he? Good, good, good, good. Well you know, I've been listening to this debate not like, I'm not sure that everybody has but I've been somewhat concerned and interested in this debate and so I've kind of, kind of watched it and I like the drama. I mean there has been drama in this debate like two times on this floor. We have a memorandum that should have been destroyed which says, which says I mean, I, don't you love it? I mean I remember, what is that remind you of? How many, huh? Watergate? It could have been that or maybe back to Joe's days, you know, when he had so many guys in the State Department that, but anyways. We had this highly dramatic memo that
